Northwest Kidney Centers welcomes new trustees and foundation board member

Seattle, WA (July 16, 2018): Northwest Kidney Centers has named two members to its board of trustees and one member to its foundation board, which raises funds and helps build connections in the community.

New trustees:

Sarah Cave is associate director and senior lecturer with the University of Washington's Master in Health Administration program. She has more than 15 years of health care leadership experience in strategy and business development with PeaceHealth and Providence health systems. She also consults with regional health care providers on governance, strategic planning and growth initiatives.

Chris Seel is a partner in PricewaterhouseCoopers' audit practice and a certified public accountant with more than 21 years of experience in accounting, auditing and reporting. His background includes auditing, merger and acquisition, public offering and accounting consultation services to private and public technology and biotech companies, as well as venture capital funds in the Pacific Northwest and Bay Area.

New foundation board member:

Daintry Price is a certified financial planner with more than 30 years of experience, currently with Conover Capital Management. She holds a bachelor's degree in business administration and management from the University of Iowa. She served on the Ruth Dykeman Children's Center board for 12 years and is treasurer on the board of administration of the Pacific Northwest Conference of the Free Methodist Church.

Northwest Kidney Centers: Northwest Kidney Centers is a regional, not-for-profit, community-based provider of kidney dialysis, public health education, and research into the causes and treatments of chronic kidney disease. Founded in Seattle in 1962, it was the world's first dialysis organization. It remains the provider of choice because of its high-quality services, community connections and generous donor support. www.nwkidney.org
